DYNAMIC SERVICE SCHEDULING

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system includes a number of services and agents interconnected by a communication network. A consumer agent identifies a template specifying one or more events for a task. The consumer agent implements an iterative process in which the template may be further defined and/or refined to provide links to one or more of the services that provide features for fulfilling events within an itinerary.